

Today's Devotional is provided by Jacqueline Laughlin

Waiting

When I was a girl
I was lost in Waiting for Godot, a play by Samuel Beckett in which two men wait for Godot
who never arrives

A man or an event
A second coming to which thereafter we might go on as we please We acted and read for drama class
A study in patience

Not much more than an academic exercise
And in some way somehow

in the bliss of youth I didn't get it was among many things
a lesson on God

I spend so much time looking and waiting on my God
When it was I who left the comfort of the upper room

returning home now ashes marking to whom I belong